PRESENTATION BY CHRIS AYLWARD, PSAC PRESIDENT

Yesterday, members heard a keynote presentation from Brother Chris Aylward, PSAC National President, highlighting the critical importance of working in solidarity during this pandemic. New tools to promote member engagement must be developed and implemented. All the work which unions have undertaken in recent years needs to be rethought and restructured in new ways. A portion of UCTE and PSAC members now work from home. The other portion are essential workers requiring assistance through this difficult time while, on a daily basis, they put their lives on the line.

Brother Aylward stressed that airports are the key to recovery in Canada, which is part of the reason why he is so supportive of UCTE members who work, or used to work, in this environment. He hails important events, such as the arrival of new members at the Calgary airport, the new collective agreement for firefighters at the Quebec City airport, demonstrations by members of the Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, and many others.

Members asked a variety of questions on several political issues, including work at home, and Phoenix. Chris Aylward pledged to be a part of whatever the UCTE needs from PSAC to get through this global crisis and to win all the battles for the rights of workers -- our members.
